

INTERVENE UPSTREAM

the peer-reviewed public health publication for graduate students

HEY GRADUATE STUDENTS, LOVE PUBLIC HEALTH?

SHARE YOUR STORY, GET PUBLISHED, AND BUILD COMMUNITY

Submit to our 1st issue: "Why Public Health?"

Join our editorial board!

Follow our social media and newsletter!

Visit www.InterveneUpstream.org/get-involved

SUBMISSION DEADLINE: 7/21/19

PUBLICATION RELEASE: 8/20/19

Submit 500-3200 word narrative essays, opinion pieces, journalism, popular science, literary fiction, or visual art projects related to public health topics, graduate studies, and professional development.

WHY GET INVOLVED?

Intervene Upstream is a unique opportunity to be involved in a student-centered publication and develop your career in public health writing, education, and outreach. The opportunity to publish is a fantastic learning experience for first-time writers, and we also welcome the craft of experienced writers.

CONTACT NICKY TETTAMANTI AT EDITORINCHIEF@INTERVENEUPSTREAM.ORG

SEEKING:

Contributing writers, columnists, staff writers, content editors, photographers, visual artists, and outreach!

OFFERING:

Fun, community, publishing experience, and editorial support!

REQUIREMENTS:

Passion for public health and a current (+/- 1 year) graduate student. Relevant submissions from non-students considered.

@INTERVENEUPSTREAM

INTERVENE UPSTREAM

@INTERVENESTREAM

Funding provided by Pager Publications, Inc., a 501c3 non-profit literacy corporation which curates and supports peer-edited publications for the medical education community. The journal and non-profit are directed and managed entirely by unpaid volunteers, so consider a tax-deductible contribution to support the publication!